From the Rabbi

Shabbat is the day in our tradition that we are meant to take ourselves out of our regular lives and reflect, renew and recharge. This takes on many different forms for us, but in addition to how we might individually observe Shabbat, we also have our communal practices and observances.

While the default observance in our community is “services,” we have over the years developed a communal minhag (custom) that recognizes and celebrates different approaches to Shabbat as well as the different communities within our larger community. We have a regular Shabbat evening service on Friday nights, and a rotating series of study groups on Shabbat morning.

Starting in December, we are making some more changes to our schedule (some of these have been happening gradually anyway). In the past our services have been held at 7:30 p.m. with an early service once a month. We are flipping that so that all of our services will be at 6:00 p.m. with a “later” service once a month. The weekly schedule looks like this:

- First Friday: 7:30 p.m. service with participation from Kol N’Shama, our choir, followed by an oneg.
- Second Friday: 6:00 p.m. service with 7:00 p.m. communal dinner and speaker, the “Shabbat Salon” (see below)
- Third Friday: 6:00 p.m. Family Shabbat service with potluck dinner following at 6:45 p.m.
- Fourth Friday: 6:00 p.m. Early service with “Shabbat at Home”—people are encouraged to join together for shared meals.

Most of these changes have been introduced already. And one thing to note is that we will only have a communal oneg after services once a month—so a great opportunity to either sponsor an oneg oneself or join with others in jointly sponsoring.

Our biggest change is the Shabbat Salon! Over time we have heard interest in both having shared meals and guest speakers on Shabbat. The Shabbat Salon is an opportunity for both! We will begin with a full Shabbat service at 6:00 p.m., then at 7:00 p.m. move to the Social Hall for a catered dinner and guest speaker. Our kickoff will be Friday, December 9 when we will share a meal provided by Nineveh Catering and welcome Max Patashnik, the Government Affairs Director of the Jewish Federation of Greater Seattle, who will speak on the upcoming legislative session. Look for a special e-mail to register for the dinner (services and speaker are open to all of course without reservations), or contact the office for more information.

From President Laura Schrager:
Good News and New Initiatives

Good news! We already have more member households and more money in pledges than we had at the end of the last fiscal year in June 2016. And we're not yet half-way through our current fiscal year. Thank you for your generous support of our community. Over the next months, the Board will be continuing to reach out to talk to people about joining or re-joining. We encourage you to contact the Rabbi, Caroline Metzger (our new Community Engagement Coordinator) or me if you have any questions about membership.

In the Membership Engagement Survey we conducted last year, a full 3/4ths of respondents said they would be interested in going to a lecture or discussion at TBH. The Shabbat Salon is a direct response to this interest. We are also acting to create a Speaker Series, with an initial focus on Israel and anti-Semitism. Some of these events will be scheduled as part of the Shabbat Salon, others at different times. The first meeting, to choose speakers and begin planning for the Speaker Series is on December 18th at 7pm. The group is open to all members interested in being involved. Please let Caroline or me know if you want to help.

We are also beginning a new initiative about homelessness in our community. It's an outgrowth of our participation in the Warming Center last winter and the decision of the ad-hoc committee this summer to, with a heavy heart, post and enforce a no-trespassing sign. Providing food and shelter to strangers is, we know, at the heart of Jewish ethics. The ad-hoc committee now plans to increase TBH's voice in the community-wide effort to develop housing options and advocate for people in need of shelter. This will be a core activity of the Tikkun Olam Committee. Allyson Brooks has volunteered to lead this effort, and you should get in touch with her (AllysonBrooks@gmail.com) or Caroline if you want to be involved.

This time of year is always dark, with shrinking daylight hours, and lots of rain. This year feels especially dark. TBH is here as your place to come, do, relax and celebrate. Come to a delightful movie on Saturday, December 3rd (Iraq N' Roll)! Make a mezuzah on December 4th! Engage in a post-election discussion on December 7th! Join us for a catered dinner and talk on Friday, December 9th! Rejoice in the Festival of Lights in our Social Hall on December 28th!

December Erev Shabbat Services

Erev Shabbat services on December 2nd and December 30th will be at 7:30pm.

A Second Post-Election Gathering, December 7 at 7:30pm

With a spontaneous determination, after the national results were clear, that many people might want to be surrounded by a community of shared values and experience at a time of great emotion, Rabbi Seth sent out a notice that there would be a gathering at the temple the evening after the 2016 General Election. Approximately 70 people responded, most from the TBH membership, but there were many others in the greater Olympia area who heard about this instantaneous event and felt the need to be amongst others.

Rabbi Seth started the event with a welcoming prayer and statement. But then quickly passed out a set of gray and green cards to all in attendance. On the gray cards, people were encouraged to describe their fears based on the election results, and on the green cards their hopes. After providing time for all to write down those feelings and wishes, the cards were read out loud for all to hear. Anyone wishing to read the listing of all the hopes and fears written down at that meeting can find them on the Rabbi's blog www.rabbi360.com.

We will gather again on Wednesday, December 7 at 7:30 p.m. for more reflection and potential planning.

FORKids Update: Tuesday, November 8

There were 16 TBH volunteers, the most ever since the beginning of the program more than ten years ago, on November 11, 2016, at the Food Bank in Tumwater who helped fill three full pallets totally 864 bags for distribution to elementary and middle school kids in the Tumwater, Olympia and North Thurston school districts. Currently that is half of the bags distributed each week by volunteer drivers. Kudos to the volunteers: Rabbi Seth Goldstein, Erez Goldstein, Ozi Goldstein, Sydney Hirsch, Jerry Hirsch, Beth Dubey, Amelia Hamilton, Mari Nowitz, Stacy Hirsch, Selah Hirsch, Olivia Walk, Erin Syversen, Leif Syversen, Betty Goldstein and Bernie Friedman. We will again be filling food bags on the second Tuesday, December 13, at 3:30 at the Tumwater Branch of the Thurston County Food Bank. We should be finished by 5:00 at the latest. If you can only come for an hour or part of an hour, it still would be appreciated. Please bring family and friends. If you have any questions, please call Elie Halpern at 357-8160 or email him at ehalpern@aol.com.

Family Life and Learning Director Catherine Carmel

Shalom y'all,

Days after the election, I traveled to Massachusetts for a conference of Reconstructionist Education Directors. While we were all very happy to see and learn from each other, there was an overwhelming unease from the election results hanging heavily on our hearts and minds. For many, Wednesday afternoon classes held the mixed blessing of connecting with families in their community while feelings were still raw. For others, the question remained, what do we tell our kids? That was a question I brought back from the conference with the answer still only half formed. That's when I realized we had a structure in place to address this.

We have stories that tell of our ancestors overcoming fear and danger; the story of the Maccabees is one of many. In the past I have been hesitant to bring up the danger in these stories, not wanting to cause unnecessary fear in our children. However, experts often disagree. Violence that expresses truthfully the dangers that exist in the lives of our kids teaches them how to deal with conflict positively. It is essential to teach children there are courageous, non-violent solutions to conflict. To this end, we have selected ometz lev, courage, as our next middah to study and practice. Set in the context of the Chanukah story, our Beit Sefer students will learn about ometz lev, translated as strength of heart, as we prepare for the possibility of a less welcoming America. G-d willing, we will be only teaching them about a holiday whose origins come from a time when Jews were not always safe. However, if the lessons learned are helpful in the future, we will have prepared our children to face the world with courage and peace.

The following paragraph is an update of what is going on in the Anafim class, taught by Rochelle Rinn.

This year is off to an energetic start. We are working together to learn, laugh and really think about what kodesh may mean to different people. So far, we have explored the meaning of HOLY and why GOD is said in so many ways. We came up with different ways to demonstrate true sacrifice. We discussed how we can sacrifice the use of a game to someone who doesn't have one, or we can give our last bit of food to a stranger who has nothing. We also learned that giving is a reward in itself. We are learning about teamwork and courage to allow others to have their own ideas that differ from our own, but are still ok. This led to our life size portrait of our class on the wall. Our team drawing demonstrated the idea that each student is a leader and that we could allow our partners to lead at the same time. These thoughts and lessons were incorporated into our team portrait that involved true cooperation and listening to each other's needs and requests. We look forward to exploring kashrut and putting ourselves in the heart of the Maccabees while the Temple was protected by their courage.

L'shalom,
